While learning to tell time, Weston & Kammie were our giant carpet clock's long and short hands.

TIME AND MONEY

The month of January was all about learning time and money in math and in Project Based Learning. Our students answered the question, "How can I create and advertise a product that my friends will want to buy?" To get their wheels turning, we showed them lots of DIY ideas from Pinterest. Then, the students drew a product design and made a list of materials that they would need. After I found all the materials, the students got to work making a prototype of their product. Next they worked on creating five replicas to sell to friends.

In the meantime, we produced "How-To" videos to market each product. Finally, we set up our stores and sold each item for 50 cents. Discovery staff was so impressed by the creative and diverse projects that we have decided to make this an annual event.

HOT COCOA, ANYONE?

If you didn't make it to our Hot Cocoa Stand, you truly missed out! The students started in the classroom by answering the question, "How can we set-up and run a hot cocoa stand for our family and friends to enjoy?" Next, we went to brainstorming WHAT supplies we needed, WHEN and WHERE the stand would take place, and WHO would do the necessary jobs. After that, we started planning the HOW. Miss Jenny designed the menu based on the things the students chose. Declan drew us a diagram of the RV and the table so we would know how to set it up. The morning of the event, we practiced with the menus, money box, and pretend hot cocoa. By the time we got to the park, the kids were raring to go! Thank you so much for supporting our event so that we could teach the students a little entrepreneurship in their money counting unit. We made a "profit" of $37.50 which the students voted to spend on playground balls, jump ropes, and new sidewalk chalk. We had votes for more Magna-Tiles and board games, so we purchased those, too from another budget. :)

VALENTINE'S, FRIENDSHIP, AND SERVICE

On Monday, February 14th, we will have a "Friendship Party". We are making valentines in class to give out to each of our friends. We also made gift bags for Caden to give to children at Children's Hospital. Each little bag has a notepad, felt Tic-Tac-Toe board, and playdough. We made each of these from scratch. We also added a colorful pen, a few crayons, and a cookie cutter for the playdough. In class, we are learning that part of being a good friend is thinking about others before yourself.
